Monthly Indicators Report

Monthly Indicators are available online at: www.ct.gov/OPM/CriminalJustice/Research

Highlights

- After four months of steady increases, the prison population declined during September. The prisoner count on the first of this month stood at 18,481: last month it was 18,593.
- Total prison admittances declined by 377 during September when compared to the August admitlevel. During September, the number of prisoner releases and discharges increased by 22 (See Table 3).
- September's decline in the prison population was influenced by several factors. Perhaps most importantly, the number of accused and unsentenced prisoner admits declined by 16%, falling to 1,755 from the August total of 2,098 (See Chart 2).
- The number of sentenced offenders incarcerated on October 1, 2010 in Connecticut (13,780 inmates) dropped to its lowest level since January 1, 2006 (see Chart 5). The sentenced-prisoner population has dropped 4% since October 1, 2009, when 14,366 sentenced-prisoners were incarcerated. The count is down by 8% compared to the October 1, 2008 figure, when the sentenced-prisoner population was 15,005.

CJPAC's Research Workgroup continues to meet on a regular, monthly basis. Recently, Workgroup participants from DHMAS, CSSD and DOC have established a steering committee for a project to merge, maintain and share data from various state criminal justice agencies.

Prison Population Forecast

The state's prison population declined significantly during the past month. The average daily inmate count (ADC) for the first seven days of the month fell from 18,555 in September to 18,452 in October. The October ADC was within 0.2% of OPM's February estimate.

The state's prison population and OPM's February 2010 prison population forecast closed to within half a percentage point in October, as the estimated population values peaked and the actual prison count declined (See Chart 1). The discrepancy between projected and actual numbers was largely attributed to slower-than-expected release rates for accused offenders who were incarcerated during the summer.

OPM's Criminal Justice Policy & Planning Division (CJPPD) continues to stand by its 2010 forecast that projected the inmate count to dip below 18,000 in the coming months. With the end of summer, the prison population is expected to track in alignment with historical, seasonal patterns.

Unlike states that have county governments, the majority of agencies within Connecticut's criminal justice system are State agencies. The one exception is law enforcement, where there are over 90 local police departments and the Connecticut State Police.

- Arrest: An individual enters into the criminal justice system at the time of arrest.
- 2) Court: At arraignment, judges review the charges filed against the accused and set a bail amount. Individuals who cannot meet bail conditions are incarcerated in DOC facilities to await trial. If the defendant is convicted, they may be sentenced to a range of sanctions including a fine, probation, or a term of incarceration.
- 3) DOC Facilities: Total facility population at DOC contains the unsentenced population, which is awaiting trial, the sentenced population, inmates who have returned from special parole, and offenders charged in federal cases or non-state cases.
- 4) Pre-Trial Release: Some defendants who are incarcerated pending the disposition of their cases may be eligible for a bond reduction or placement into pre-trial diversionary programs or treatment programs. These programs feature close coordination and cooperation between DOC, CSSD and the Department of Mental Health and Addiction Services (DMHAS).
- 5) Re-Entry Services: Depending on several factors, an inmate may be eligible to complete a portion of his/her prison sentence under supervision of the DOC's Parole and Community Services Unit. Non-violent Inmates with sentences shorter than two years are eligible for Transitional Supervision after serving 50% of their sentences. Inmates serving sentences longer than two years may be eligible for parole.
- 6) Returns: Offenders who violate the conditions of their community release may be returned to prison to complete the remainder of their sentences.
- 7) End of Sentence (EOS): At the end of their sentences some offenders are required to complete a period of post-release supervision. Split-sentence offenders are supervised by the Judicial Branch's Office of Adult Probation. Offenders sentenced to special parole remain under DOC supervision.
- 8) Violation of Probation: If an individual violates the terms of their probation, an arrest warrant must be issued, and the violator's case is returned to court.

Parole

Paroles and Parole hearings

The Board considered 269 parole cases at full panel hearings in September. In addition, the Board considered an additional 131 parole violation cases. Ninety-three (93) of these cases resulted in offenders being reparoled; 75 cases had been revocations; 18 had been rescissions.

The Board of Pardons and Paroles schedules parole hearing dates up to 18 months before an offender's eligibility date. This should allow the Board to have a greater impact on offender programming while the offender remains incarcerated. It should also provide DOC with more time to develop appropriate reintegration plans for each parolee. If properly implemented, this change should reduce the number of offenders that are incarcerated beyond their parole eligibility dates.
