Monthly Indicators Report

Published by the Connecticut State Office of Policy and Management and the Connecticut Statistical Analysis Center

Highlights

- On December 1st, the state's inmate count was 17,459, 313 fewer than on the first of November. 2000 was the last year in which the December 1st prison count was lower.
- The implementation of the Risk Reduction Earned Credit (RREC) program is proceeding at the DOC. In October, RREC credits were applied to 252 offenders. During November, earned credits were applied to 506 prisoners who discharged from prison during the month. Credits were also applied to 618 offenders who discharged from community supervision programs. The average prisoner discharging from prison in November earned about 27 days of credit. The average offender in a community supervision program received about 63 days.
- The high volume of discharges from community programs, due to RREC, has resulted in a steep and rapid drop in parole and transitional supervision caseloads at DOC's Community Supervision Division (See Chart 8). In December 2010, there were 3,842 offenders under the DOC community supervision. Today there are about 3,345.
- The number of monthly, statewide criminal arrests has lagged the 3year arrest average in every month in 2011 (See Chart 5).

CT's death row population increased from 10 to 11 on December 9th when Joshua Komisarjevsky received the death penalty for his role in the Cheshire murders in 2007.

Prison Population Forecast

OPM's forecast of the average daily prison count during the first week in December was off by 1.9%. Although OPM had projected a declining prison population during November, the introduction of Risk Reduction Earned Credits by DOC resulted in several hundred early discharges that were not anticipated when the forecast was produced in February.

According to DOC data, 1,351 prisoners were discharged from prison, at the end of their sentences during November (See Table 3). Approximately 500 of these prisoners (See Bullet 2 on this page) were released early because of credits. The high number of end-of-sentence (EOS) prison discharges in November produced a small spike in the number of offenders beginning split sentences with adult probation.

In the August 2011 this paper reported that the prison population could fall below 17,200 by January 2012. Today, it appears almost certain that the prison population will bottom out at around that figure by New Year's Day.

Unlike states that have county governments, the majority of agencies within Connecticut's criminal justice system are State agencies. The one exception is law enforcement, where there are over 90 local police departments and the Connecticut State Police.

- Arrest: An individual enters into the criminal justice system at the time of arrest.
- 2) Court: At arraignment, judges review the charges filed against the accused and set a bail amount. Individuals who cannot meet bail conditions are incarcerated in DOC facilities to await trial. If the defendant is convicted, they may be sentenced to a range of sanctions including a fine, probation, or a term of incarceration.
- 3) DOC Facilities: Total facility population at DOC contains the unsentenced population, which is awaiting trial, the sentenced population, inmates who have returned from special parole, and offenders charged in federal cases or non-state cases.
- 4) Pre-Trial Release: Some defendants who are incarcerated pending the disposition of their cases may be eligible for a bond reduction or placement into pre-trial diversionary programs or treatment programs. These programs feature close coordination and cooperation between DOC, CSSD and the Department of Mental Health and Addiction Services (DMHAS).
- 5) Re-Entry Services: Depending on several factors, an inmate may be eligible to complete a portion of his/her prison sentence under supervision of the DOC's Parole and Community Services Unit. Non-violent Inmates with sentences shorter than two years are eligible for Transitional Supervision after serving 50% of their sentences. Inmates serving sentences longer than two years may be eligible for parole.
- 6) Returns: Offenders who violate the conditions of their community release may be returned to prison to complete the remainder of their sentences.
- 7) End of Sentence (EOS): At the end of their sentences some offenders are required to complete a period of post-release supervision. Split-sentence offenders are supervised by the Judicial Branch's Office of Adult Probation. Offenders sentenced to special parole remain under DOC supervision.
- 8) Violation of Probation: If an individual violates the terms of their probation, an arrest warrant must be issued, and the violator's case is returned to court.
