

Post-School Outcomes Survey

Students: We need your help in rating special education services in Connecticut!

You can help improve transition services in Connecticut high schools by completing and returning the Connecticut Post-School Outcomes Survey. This short survey is a set of simple questions about education and training, employment, applicable state agency support and life in general after leaving high school. Annual ANONYMOUS feedback provided by students who return completed surveys will be sent to your school district to help improve transition services.

If you received special education services from a Connecticut public school or were outplaced during high school by a district, you can expect to receive a personal copy of the Post-School Outcomes Survey within one year after graduating or leaving high school.

Taking time to reply is very important. This is a special chance for your experience to influence what future students like you will do when they are in high school.

Parents, guardians or other adults can assist you in completing and returning the survey if you want.

The Post-School Outcomes Survey will be mailed to your home address on record at your school district one year after leaving high school. To be sure you will receive the Post-School Outcomes Survey, notify the district if your address changes after you leave school.

Each survey is totally private and confidential. Your name will not be anywhere on the completed survey and your response WILL make a difference!
